Carvers.

Do you expect to carve a turkey next month? November is the proper month to do such things, and the Thanksgiving turkey will have to be cut up. Then there will be the Christmas and New Years dinners to be thought of, so after all it is about the right time to get that new set of Carvers you have been thinking about getting.

We have all sorts—plain, fancy, cheap, medium and expensive, and can please you with the new stock in this line that we have just received.

A full line of table cutlery, also plated spoons, forks and knives.

Marriage by Halter.

Among ignorant people of English birth it is fully believed that a wife bought with money or goods is legally married if the purchaser leads her all the way home by a halter.

Mr. Baring Gould, the English antiquarian, tells of a village poet known to him who bought a wife for a half crown and led her 12 miles to his cottage.

The squire and the rector protested to the village poet that he was not legally wedded.

"Why, yes I be," he replied. "I'll take my Bible oath I never once took the halter off till she'd crossed the door-sill and the door was shut."

The latest instances of such wife sales occurred in 1858 and 1859, when women were sold in Little Horton and in Dudley. In these cases a blue ribbon took the place of the straw halter.

But, gentle ladies, the symbolic idea was the same.

A Laugh on Lord Kelvin.

A good story is related of Lord Kelvin's lecturing methods at the Glasgow university. As a professor of science he can use long words in such formidable array as would make a dictionary break its binding with horror. During a course of lectures once on magnetism, for instance, he defined an ideal magnet as "an infinitely long, infinitely thin, uniform and uniformly and longitudinally magnetized bar," and the misguided students vociferously cheered, which caused the professor to say, "Silence!" This definition was made and cheered, with the usual reprimand, frequently during the lectures. Once, near the conclusion, however, the students did not cheer, but Lord Kelvin, from force of habit, rapped out "Silence!" the same as before.
